SOFTWOOD

Bold contrast.

Sometimes, the conventional must be rethought. Not as a nostalgic glance backward, but as a counterbalance to modernity. In a world of concrete, glass, and steel, warmth and vitality are often missing. The natural authenticity of RUSTICO and MARCANTO softens modernity's cool edge. Each enhances the other. Nature remains untamed. Modernity is not diluted, but enriched with a sense of comfort and warmth. Because nothing feels as raw, as genuine, and as unmistakable as softwood.

BROWN - GREY

The brown tones of softwood enter into a striking dialogue with the cool shades of grey found in concrete. Every grain, every knot conveys authenticity and strength, while the smooth, neutral surfaces create a sense of calm and modernity.

SINGLE PLANK - EXPOSED CONCRETE

The classic plank dimensions create a structured installation pattern. This produces an intriguing contrast when paired with large, minimalist surfaces.

WOOD - CONCRETE, GLASS, STEEL

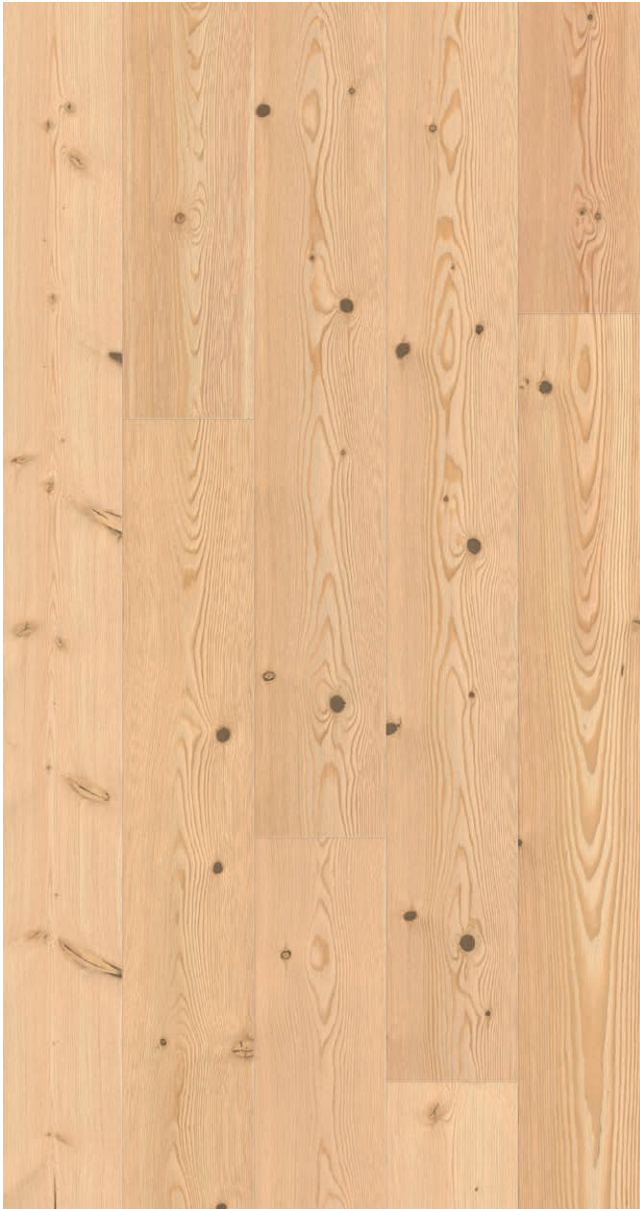

Softwoods have more gentle wood fibres than oak, which gives them a velvety feel. The brushed surface makes the contrast between the materials tangible. Combined with the sleek surfaces of steel or glass and the textured feel of concrete, softwood becomes an experience for all the senses.

Wild by nature, staged with a modern edge.

Softwood grows in the wild – on barren mountain slopes, battered by wind and weather. It withstands everything: storms, frost, drought. Every grain, every knot tells that story. This raw strength, this untamed authenticity brings tension and character into your home. Softwood brings spaces to life.
